THE WORLD

Published by the Press Publishing Co. SATURDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 4.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE EVENING EDITION (Including Postage). PER MONTH, 30c.; PER YEAR, $3.50.

Circulation Books and Press Room OPEN TO ALL

THE CIRCULATION OF THE EVENING EDITION

THE WORLD

for the week ending Saturday, Jan. 28, was as follows :

Monday 149,680 Tuesday 71.940 WEDNESDAY 75,300 THURSDAY 76,040 FRIDAY 76,780

SATURDAY 78,140

NO VIOLENCE.

The striking miners will make a great and fatal mistake if they do not promptly repudiate and restrain the resort to violence. Rioting and assaults will forfeit the sym pathy of the public, which now gives them moral and material support. One man's right to work is just as plain and as fundamental as another man's right

Meanwhile the hired murderers of the coal and iron combination should be suppressed by the local authorities.

HOLDING THE GROUND.

President CLEVELAND has justified the confidence of the friends of Civil-Service Reform by approving and promulgating a revision of the rules which will strengthen the reform system.

The new rules make it an offense, punishable with dismissal, for any office-holder to interfere in elections or to remove subordinates for their political action. The levying or collection of political assessments is still further guarded against, as is also the introduction of political tests or influence into the examination.

The unjust limitation of forty-five years in the age of candidates is removed and the preference of soldiers made more clear.

The reform is here to stay.

THE MAN ON HORSEBACK.

Months ago THE EVENING WORLD WATNES the Republican wire-pullers and pipe-layers to keep an eye out for "the man on horseback "-PHIL SHERIDAN.

To-day they see him looming up as a possible Presidential candidate, involuntarily astride a boom that will carry him irresistibly into and through the Republican Convention, as his historic charger carried him to battle and victory from Winchester-"twenty miles away.

There is hardly more than one "if" in the way-"if Sheridan will consent."

A MAGNIFICENT FAILURE.

The special committee of the Assembly having verified THE WORLD's circumstantial account of the condition of the crumbling stone ceiling, the members propose to "stand from under."

The whole Capitol building is a magnificent failure-mongrel in style, utterly ill-adapted to its uses, expensive beyond all reason, and unsafe in its most important room.

This is the natural result of mixing mortal with politics. The new Capitol has been ruined by being "worked for all it was worth " by successive rings of politicians.

It would be a poetic vengeance if the ceiling could crush those only who are responsible for this monumental failure.

EDITOR SULLIVAN.

The report that JOHN LAWRENCE SULLIVAN is to return to Boston, the city of his birth. and become the editor of a sporting journal, contains elements of probability.

What is more natural than that the champion of the new culture in the city that once considered itself "the modern Athens" should be called upon to assist in the rapidly progressing renaissance of ancient Rome?

Boston some time since lost the literary sceptre that was so long its pride. The champion belt alone does not satisfy the three-hilled town. But with SULLIVAN'S ponderous paw wielding the pen, may not the ancient laurels be regained?

Truly, the pen is mightier than the fist,

The River and Harbor grab-bag is now filling up in the House. The prizes are expected to aggregate fifteen or twenty millions. The surplus must go!

It" Two of you hold him-one can hold me easy enough "-is the substance of JEM SMITH'S " chin-music" about meeting SULLI-

The poor old setting Sun continues the con tortions that give proof of inward distress. It is a hopeless case-" his eyes is sot."

Pyromaniac is a bigger name than "firebug," but it comes to pretty much the same thing. Both need to be shut up.

More striking, not more fighting, is the miners' true policy.

Read His Own Oblinary Many Times. Editor Angus P. McIntyre, of Long Island City is busily engaged in looking for the practical joke who circulated the report that he was dead and caused obituary notices to be widely published yea-terday. Congratulations were showered upon him yeaterday. This is the third time that Mr. McIntyre has been reported dead.

Schools Closed on Account of Fever. been ordered closed by the Board of Health, on ac count of scarlet fever, which threatens to become

GOSSIP FROM FULTON MARKET.

Striped base weighing sixty pounds each and ter-North Carolina, are at the market.

Owing to the recent cold snap the supply of fish from local quarters has been quite small, while th foreign supply is unusually good. A snipment from the Guif of Mexico of pompanos, groupers and red snappers was received yesterday at Fulton Market Pub Commissioner Engana Q. Blackford received yesterday a life-size crayon portrait of the late Spencer F. Baird, Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries of the United States. The gift was made by Prof. G. Brown Goode, of the National Museum, at Washington, D. C. Commissioner Blackford has encossfully raised California trout from eggs sent to him by the South Side Club. This is said to be the first time that the raising of this fish has proved successful in this market. The eggs were taken from the ponds of the above club.

POLICEMEN WITH PECULIARITIES.

Policeman Halfpenny, of the Information Bueau, is one of the fluest penmen in the city. He follows the Spencerian style.

Doormen Barnes and Fitzpatrick at Police Headquarters are two of the smallest men on the force, out are exceedingly agile. Barnes is as bald as a billiard ball. Policeman Mitchell, who attends the door leading into the Superintendent's office, will put on bis third stripe in September to indicate fifteen years of a very active service. Roundsman Saul, transferred from the Thirteenth to deak work, gives out permits to parade for societies and funerals, and is the walking encyclopedia of the building. Policeman Rennar, transferred from the Eleventh to the desk formerly filled by Capt. Warts, is distinguished for his striking resemblance to Gov.

lill. He is an expert penman. Policeman Clinton, transferred from the big otel section of the Nineteenth to clerical work in the Central Office, stands 6 feet 1 winches in his stocking feet, and weighs 200 pounds. He is one of the most scientific boxers on the force. He distinguished himself on one occasion by taking WORLDLINGS.

The most costly private collection of pictures in he West is said to be that of Mr. Nickerson, Presi dent of the First National Bank of Chicago.

One of the ladies present at a recent fancy con tume ball in Denver wore a dress of white satin completely covered over with copies of a local

A Traverse City (Mich.) man is lecturing on the evils of wearing a mustache. He declares that no man with any respect for himself should permi hair to grow on his upper lip. J. C. Bornes, of Butts County, Ga., carries in his pocket a Minie ball which he received in the back during the war, and which he subsequently dug out from his left hip with a pocket-knife. Catherine Woodson, a negro woman living t

Macon, Ga., saw a boy turown from the back of a runaway mule and fainted. She died soon after, and the Coroner pronounced her death due to heart disease, caused by excessive fright. The teachers in the Sandusky (O.) schools make an inspection of their pupils' faces every morning.

and the unlucky boy or girl that is found with dirty face is compelled to scrub it with soap and water in the presence of the entire school. While Paul Rose was cutting down a tree, near Merrill, Wis., recently, he saw a large lynx jump from the branches just as the tree began to fall. The falling tree followed the lynx in its descent as losely that it pinned the animal to the ground and held it there until Rose could despatch it with his Fred Bartels, a Milwankeeasaloon-keeper, is proud of the fact that he was a playmate of Becretary Vilas when they were boys together at Madi son, Wis. He is a great admirer of the Secretary of the Interior, and the latter, when he passes through Milwaukee, frequently drops into Fred's aloon to talk over old times. The train-robber Reeves, who is under arrest at San Antonio, Tex. , is described as a model of physical development. He is 6 feet 1 inch in height, broad-shouldered and well-proportioned, with a handsome face and clear-cut features. He is re garded by the Texas officers as the boidest and should go round some time to-morrow isn't ablest of the train robbers, superior even to the there some way I could see it, if you're not celebrated "Capt. Dick."

Capt. Planck, of the British bark Windhover, has the reputation of being the youngest man in and I'll leave word with the woman of the the Queen's mercantile marine in command of a house to let you in to see it." said José, nce, and only recently passed his twenty-fourth pirthday, but he is making a splendld record in the natter of quick voyages. He recently brought his bark from Sydney to San Francisco in forty-four Getting Even.

Midgely who spent several thousand dollars for heatre tickets last season, without seeing the stage once, on account of the nigh hat numance, adopts a scheme for revenge this year. He lets his hair grow, and combs it up.

Birds of Passage. Arthur C. A. Hutton, of England, is a guest of the Gilser.

Gov. Ames, of Massachusetts, is at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Lieut. Jas. E. Kuhn, U. S. A., and Lieut. H. L. Evans, U. S. A., are at the Grand. Two Londoners, Sydney B. Rogers and Cecil Walker, are among the recent arrivals at the Albe-

Galusha A. Grow, of Fennsylvania, and W. Ca Haskins, a well-known Boston manufacturer, are at the Victoria.

at the Victoria.

C. C. Hayer Mullin, of London, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Thompson, of Pittsburg, are registered at the Gilsey.

Miss Alger, daughter of ex-Gov. Alger, of Michigan, is staying with a friend at the Fifth Avenne, under the chaperonage of Mrs. John A. Logan, Jr. Among the many new at the Hoffman House.

Among the many now at the Hoffman House are C. A. Ellis, of the Boston Symphony Society, and M. L. Moses, lawyer, railroad man and capitalist, of Montgomery, Aia.

of Montgomery, Ala.

M. N. Burchard, of Chicago, R. H. Soule, of Englewood, N. J., General Superintendent of the Eric Railway, and Richard Vaux, the well-known Philadelphia lawyer, are among the recent arrivals at the St. James.

John Sanford, of Amsterdam, who is at the St.

James, attended the performance of "Paul Kauvar," at the Standard Theatre, last night, and was so pleased that he declares he will present to the author, Steele Mackaye, a diamond pin.

Pres Lectures in Cooper Union. The opening lectures in Cooper Union.

The opening lecture of the second division of the free Saturday night lectures in Cooper Union will will be given to-night by David B. Sickies on the subject "Siam and the Siamese." No one will be admitted after 8 o'clock.

Ha, Ha! Ho, Ho! Laugh they that e'er those who don't off wall, "Tough B00-H00 I uck, no trade, what shall we do?"

A CUBAN INSURGENT

At the End of a Small Clew.

POLICE CAPT. M'DONNELL,

Of the Prince Street Station.

PART II. [WRITTEN EXPRESSLY FOR THE EVENING WORLD.]

At this time there were a number of Cubans in this city, men who had been among the insurgents in the revolution on that island. I knew where many of these men lodged and were accustomed to go. A great number of them were employed in cigar factories, as this was a trade they were acquainted with.

One thing of importance must be mentioned here. Among the murdered Chinaman's effects was found a dagger. It was a foreign-looking thing which he had picked up somewhere. I kept this, thinking it might be useful in leading to something else.

I began to make inquiries among the cigar factories to see if there was an employee called Sanchez working at any of them. I found that a Cuban of that name had been employed in one of them downtown. He had left there not long before. When? They told me the day. It was two days after the Chinaman was murdered. Where had he gone to? They didn't know. He had never complained, but he came to them on this day and said he had better pay offered him elsewhere and he was going to take it. Did he have any special friend among the other employees? Yes; two or three who had been with him in Cuba and had also been insurgents like himself. The one he used to seem most intimate with was a fellow named José Fernandez.

I found out where Fernandez boarded, and where he went in the evenings. He used to frequently go to a Bleecker street restaurant, and I went there to meet him.

He came in one evening when I was there and sat down at the table and ordered dinner. I rose and went to the same table. I professed an interest in Cuban affairs, and especially in the revolutionary spirit and party.

Fernandez was a small man with a reddish mustache and brown hair. He did not look like a Spaniard at all, but he had a slight accent in speaking English. He answered my questions about the aims the party had in view, and what the feeling was in the island about them.

Finally I asked him: "Was Sanchez with you in the Cuban uprising?" Yes," he replied. "Sanchez is a good fellow. He was with us, and he fought like tiger. He is pretty hot when something happens that he doesn't like." Where is he now," I inquired, carelessly. "I don't know. He left the factory without speaking about it to me, and I have not seen or heard of him since. I think he must have left New York or I should have met him somewhere-here or at some place where the fellows go." "I would like to find him because I have got some business to do with him. But I have lost track of him for a while and they don't know where he has gone at the factory. suppose this Sanchez is the one I am looking for. Have you got any picture of him?" "I haven't got a photograph of himself," said Fernandez, "but there is a picture which a crowd of us had taken, fellows that had been together in Cuba." "I'd like to see it, and I can tell then it they are the same," I said. "If you come around to my room some time, you can see it. I'm there evenings, after 9 or 10." Where do you keep it?" I asked. "If I

"Yes. It's hanging in my room in a frame,

"That's all right, then. I would like to know if it's the same man. I'll be there some time to-morrow, and if you'll arrange it so I can see the picture I'll be much obliged."

"I'll tell the woman, and she'll show it to von." he said. The next day I went for the small German boy who had seen the dark man pull the Chinaman back into the restaurant. I told him I wanted him to go with me. I went to Fornandez's house. He was out, but the landlady said I could go to his room, third floor, back, as he had told her I wanted to see a photograph which was on the mantelpiece.

I took the German boy with me and we went upstairs to Fernandez's room. It was a small one, looking out on the backs of the neighboring houses. The photograph was on the mantelpiece. It was mounted on a piece of stiff cardboard somewhat soiled. Fortunately it was a pretty clear photo, and the features of all the men could be easily distinguished, although there were twenty of

"Fritz," said I, after looking at it a moment, "look at this photograph carefully and see if there is anybody there that you know or that you have ever seen before."

The boy took the picture in some surprise He was a simple, honest fellow and seemed very sensible. He carried the photo over to the window and looked at each of the faces

Suddenly he gave a start and exclaimed : " Why, Captain, that is the man I saw pull the Chinaman back into the restaurant ; only he was scowling and seemed blacker then than this."

He pointed out a man in the front row, the second from the middle. " Are you sure that this is the man you saw ?" I asked him.

"Yes, I know it is. I can tell his face. It's just like him," replied the boy. I took the photograph with me and told Fritz he could go home. That night I went to the restaurant, and when Fernandez came n I went to him and said : "I took your photograph along. Here i is. Which one is Sanchez. There is one there that looks like the fellow I want, and if his name is Sanchez then they are the same, in all probability."

He took the photograph and put his finger on the man in the front row, the second from the middle. That is Sanches," he said.

"Then they are the same." I answered. " was not sure that it might not be an accidental resemblance. Now, how can I find him?" "I don't know. There is a woman he used to go with named Isadora Merino. She may CHURCH OF ST. PAUL THE APOSTLE. What the Paulist Fathers Have Accomplished in This City in Thirty Years. The Institute of Missionary Priests of St-Paul the Apostle, also known as the Paulist Fathers, was founded by the Rev. Isaac T.

9

3

A BAD CASE OF SOUR GRAPES.

know something about him."

now ?" I asked her.

her. I carried the dagger with me.

What do you want him for?"

Fernandez told me where he thought the woman lived. I hunted her up and found

"Do you know where Sanchez is working

"I don't know as I do," she said slowly.

"I want to see him about something. If "There was a Spaniard, though, who came ners for a short time and then left," said the boss. "His name was Gonzalo Perez."

"Did he look like that?" I inquired, taking out the photograph and pointing at Sanches in it.

no traces.

I made the cigar factories my "beat," and at last I found him. He was in a new Manual Tourne.

place, under the name of Miguel Torres. ... shadowed him after I had located him in the factory and followed him home.

When he had got to his room I waited a moment and then knocked. He said: "Come in," and I entered.

I asked him about eigar-making, how many he could roll a day and what wages he got,
and whether he was satisfied with his present been left.

"Sanchez," said I quickly, "why did you kill the Chinaman with a bread-knife instead of with this?"

He got livid, and sprang from his chair with an oath. "Who said I killed a Chinaman? That's a lie? I never did anything to any Chinaman, or any one else"
"So you have forgotten the afternoon you

So you have forgotten the afternoon you quarrelled with him on Wooster street, in his restaurant, because he wanted his pay, have you, Sanchez?"

He was scowling fiercely now and was breathing pretty quick through his thin nostrils. His lips twitched and he said with difficulty. "Who are you, and what do you mean by this?"

"I am a policeman, and I arrest you to answer the charge of murdering the Chinaman on Wooster street."

He looked around and seemed like a wild beast at bay. He had begun to think that he had escaped and this came to him without and escaped and this came to him without any warning.

I had drawn my pistol and he finally concluded that it was better not to make any resistance. "It's all a lie," he repeated, with the same scowling look, "and they can't prove anything against me."

'You've forgotten the boy who saw you haul the Chinaman back and kill him, haven't you?" I said you?" I said.

"—the boy!" he said, victously. "He didn't see anything. What does he say?"
"You'll find that out later," said I. "Now, you come with me, and don't attempt any re-

He was evidently of two minds, not know.

He was evidently of two minds, not knowing whether he had better try to escape or had better go with me and trust to luck that nothing could be proven against him.

I held my pistol resolutely in my hand, and he finally concluded that he had better come without any struggle.

When he was brought to trial circumstantial evidence was the strong against him.

sitely in Monday's EVENING WORLD.

you?" I said.

Reynard Ananias Dana Doesn't Like the "Evening World's" Popular

Police Captains' Stories.

Hecker, the Rev. A. F. Hewit, the Rev. G. Deshon and the Rev. F. A. Baker, in March, 1859, by a decree of the Sovereign Pontiff. For a time they occupied a temporary building at Sixtieth street and Broadway, until funds

"I want to see him about semething. If you know where he is there is no reason why you shouldn't tell me. You know that, don't you?" and I pulled out the dagger and showed it to her.

"Why, that's his dagger," she exclaimed.
"How did you get it?"

"That shows I'm all right with him, doesn't it, if he gives one his dagger for a keepsake?"

"I spose so," she answered. "Well, I don't know where he is now. He was at a cigar factory over in Williamsburg."

I got her to give me the address. When I went there they told me no man of that name was there. I went through the room where the men were at work, but he was not among them. REV. GEORGE DESHON. had been collected for the purchase of a site at Fifty-ninth street and Ninth avenue, on which the first church was erected.

The corner-stone of the building was laid June 19, 1859, by Archbishop Hughes, and was dedicated Nov. 27 of the same year by Vicar-General Storrs. It was a plain three story building, 135 feet in length by 50 feet wide, the eastern end and the entire third story being set apart for the use of the com-munity, while the remainder was arranged as a temporary church. This was enlarged sev-eral times up to 1865, the time when the building of the frame church in Sixtieth street was commenced.

taking out the photograph and pointing at Sanchez in it.

"Yes, that is the very man. He was here only a short time and then he left. I don't know where he is now."

I was pretty sure Sanchez was involved in the Chinaman's murder. He had quarrelled with John the day he was killed, or at least had treated him roughly, as Fritz's story showed. He had owed John a small sum, which the Chinaman had probably asked for. Then after the murder he had left the place where he was working, had gone to this street was commenced.

The parish at first extended from Fifty-second to One Hundred and Tenth street, and from the North River to Sixth avenue. When where he was working, had gone to this Williamsburg place under an assumed name and had now disappeared again. It looked as if he were trying to make off, so as to leave the parish of the Holy Name was founded the northern boundary of St. Paul's was placed at Seventy-fifth street, and the creation of the parish of the Sacred Heart caused its southern boundary to be placed at Fifty-fourth street. For some time after the Convent Church was opened there was a great resort to it by all the Catholic people of that vicinity and the need of increased facilities was greatly felt. It was then that the idea of building a very large and fine church suggested itself, and every effort was made for increasing contributions for this purpose. At first a frame church was put up in Sixtieth street, but this it was soon found would not answer the purpose intended, and it was regarded as merely a temporary structure. and whether he was satisfied that place.

"Oh, it's good enough, but I'd just as lief go to some other city, if I could get a job. I don't like this place much."

"Do you know that?" I asked, suddenly drawing the dagger out of my pocket.

"That's mine," he said. "Where did you get it?" He seemed puzzled at my having it, and evidently did not recall where it had been lett.

pose intended, and it was regarded as merely a temporary structure.

The corner-stone of the magnificent new structure, which now stands at Fifty-ninth street and Ninth avenue, was finally laid June 4, 1876, by His Grace, Archbishop Corrigan. It is the second largest church edifice in this country. Some of its dimensions are as follows: The façade on Ninth avenue is 182 feet wide, consisting of a central compartment flanked by two towers thirty-eight feet square at the base, and 300 feet high to the top of the spires. The total external length of the church is 284 feet. It has a seating capacity of 2,400 and standing room for 2,000 additional.

The style is Gothic, and the entire design, both within and without is characterized by both within and without is characterized by the absence of elaborate or expensive orna-mentation. Simplicity and dignity were the effects sought for, and to obtain these the artist depended entirely on the size and massiveness of the building when erected, the correctness of detail and the harmonious grouping of parts.

This great structure was completed in 1885

This great structure was completed in 1885 and was solemnly dedicated on the Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul, on Jan. 25 of that year, Archbishop Corrigan being the celebrant of the mass, with the Rev. Arthur J. Donnelly as assistant priest, the Rev. R. L. Burtsell, D. D., deacon, and the Rev. John J. Kean, sub-deacon. The sermon was preached by the Most Rev. Patrick John Ryan, D. D., Archbishop of Philadelphia.

The Rev. Father Hecker, who is still at the head of the order of "Missionary Priests," was born in this city Dec. 18, 1819. He was educated as a Protestant, became associated with the Brook Farm Association, and subsequently with other communities, but found them all satisfactory. He finally entered the Catholic Church in 1845 and joined the Redemptorist Fathers in Baltimore. He afterwards spent two years in London, where he was ordained a priest by Cardinal Wiseman. After his return to this country he went back to Baltimore and met the priests whom he chose as his associates in founding the Paulist Community. He started the Catholic World in 1855, and in 1869 was present at the Vatican Council as Procurator of Bishop Rosencrans, of Columbus, O. In 1878, his health failing, he gave up all active duties except the editing of the Catholic World, although he still remains the Superior-General of the community.

The Rev. George Deshon, who is the pres-

When he was brought to trial circumstantial evidence was pretty strong against him, but there was not proof enough of deliberate murder to give him the gallows. What was shown was sufficient, however, to transfer him to prison walls for a long term.

The chalk marks on the wall had been his account, and John had "totted" it up and asked for a settlement. He was pretty full and the Chinaman had vexed him till his nasty temper got the better of him, and he struck the fatal blow. mains the Superior-General of the community.

The Rev. George Deshon, who is the present pastor of the church, was one of the original founders of the order. He was born in New London, Conn., where he received his early education as a Protestant. He was appointed to the Military Academy at West Point, where he was graduated with high honors, being commissioned a lieutenant of ordnance. He did not fance a soldier's life, however, and becoming a Catholic, devoted himself to holy studies. He joined the Redemptorists at Baltimore, where he met Father Hecker and eventually joined him in founding the new community. A HOT RUN is the title of Police Capt. Sie-

MEN OF STRENGTH AND SKILL McCaffrey will not have anything to do with Jen Pell's offer to fight.

Capt. Cooke says in this week's issue of the Bo ton Police News that the Denver Cribb Club's re-versal of Referee Williams's decision in the Godfrey-McHenry-Johnson fight is the first instance where a dead wrong decision in the ring has not been regarded as final. The award was reversed, and Godfrey received $600 out of the $850 purse the men fought for, Careful readers of the Queensberry ode will agree with Capt. Cooke when he says: 'The rules forbid clinching, but there is no time and no spot in the ring where a contestant is not entitled within the three minutes constituting a round to fight. The principal who fights and de ivers blows is not the man who commits the foul; the principal who clinches is the violator of the rules." There is only one time under the Queensberry rules when the men can be ordered to separate—that is when one has the other on the ropes,

The following has been received at the office of THE EVENING WORLD:

THE EVENING WORLD:

I hereby accept the challenge of Prof. Miller to box and wrestle any man in America. I will box him ten or fifteen rounds with three-ounce gloves in three weeks from signing articles. Will also wrestle him thirty minutes any style that may be agreed upon. The winner of the boxing contest to take two-thirds of net gate receipts; the winner of the wrestling match to take one-third. Each party to post $250 forfeit. An answer through THE EVENING WORLD will oblige

JEM FELL.

I. F. S. H. K. L. and W. F. - The figures in the newspaper clipping you send, giving Dempsey's weight as 152 pounds and McCaffrey's 175 pounds are probably incorrect. McCaffrey gave his weight on the night of the contest as 168% pounds and Dempsey said he scaled 145% pounds. There appeared to be fully twenty-five pounds difference between the men.

Two of the Pastime Athletic Club men, Berian nd McGann, will be reprimanded and possibly expelled for competing in the Manhattan Athletic Rub's winter games last Saturday evening. The punishment will be for entering from New York City, and not as Pastime Athletic Cinb members. The Manhattans compelled their crack runner, P. D. Skillman, to cease running as a Suburban Harrier some time ago.

The New York Athletic Club will hold a ladies' day reception this afternoon. A fine gymnastic treat, including boxing and fencing, has been prepared by Profs. Goldie, Donovan and Senac.

The entry lists for the Scottish-American Athletic Club's boxing and wrestling competitions at the Oakland Avenue Rink, Jersey City, on Feb. 28, promise to be complete. The Pastime Athletic Club will send such boxers as O'Keefe, Samson, Meehan, O'Leary, McGovern and T. Cahill, and the champion amateur light-weight wrestler,

What promises to be a rattling good finish contest for a purse between two clever amateurs is lown to take place inside of ten days.

The Nautilus Boat Club has decided to give a fine stand of colors to the athletic club winning the most points in its games on Feb. 31. Winners will sount five points, second and third places three and one respectively. The Nassaus are said to be likely to hang the colors on their club-house.

Jack Bates, the Western feather-weight spoken of in THE EVENING WORLD of Thursday, is looked upon as a promising candidate. He stood up before some of the Nassau Athletic Club boys in pri vate the other night. As he easily bested an amateur considerably larger than himself, his teacher. Ned McDonald, to show how good Bates really is, put on the gloves with him for a few McDonald now carries a finely ornamented eye. Jimmy Larkins and Bates ought to make a good fight,

POLICEMEN ON PROBATION.

To Attend School by Day and Do Patrol Duty by Night.

The following have been appointed patrolmen on the police force and have been assigned to duty as follows: George B. McClellau Tully, to Charles street; Dennis J. Mooney, to West Thirtieth street; Thos. K. Hastings, to Delancey street, and Louis Bonm, to East Twenty-second street.

They will serve a probation of thirty days, during which they must attend the School of Instruction daily and perform patrol service from midnight until 6 A. M.

Exchanging Compliments. [From Harper's Basar.] Her Cousin-I must say, Emma, that you've grown quite handsome. There, now, can't you give me a compliment in return.

His Cousin—Weil, I should say that you were a gentleman of most excellent taste.

The Blizzard's Purpose [From the Chicago Tribune.] "Why is it," I asked of the blizzard,
"Your track is so capricious and wild?
Your movements the sage weather prophet
No more can predict than the child."

"I am trying to hunt down the fellow,"
He screeched with wild, pitliess laughter,
Who said this would be a warm winter—
He's the slippery villain I'm after." A Lesson in Navigation. (From the Bufalo Express.) Officer of Deck (to able seaman)—Drunk, were you, sir? What's your name? Jack—Cain, sir. Officer (sternly jocular)—The man who slew his brother? Jack (shifting his quid)—No, sir; I'm the man that got slewed. No Room for It. Prom the Pittsburg Chronicle, \

Edmund Fzezepankiewicz took out a marri-ge licease. He took it out because there was no room in the Court-House for the document after that name was smeared over it. Caligula's Big Banquet. [From the Baltimore American.] Caligula once spent $100,000 on a single supper. So history says. The truth, probably, is that he spent $100 on the supper and handed over the rest as tips to the watters.

In the Philadelphia Orphans' Court on Saturday

A Leap Year Idyl. (From the Duluth Paragrapher.)
Bright are the pearls of fancy,
Swift are the wings of tove, And surer to entrance thee Than all the powers above

Is the little maid you're wooing Because you cannot stop it, and though its out the question she'll surely make you pop it. a Bill of Lading for the Menu.

The Railroad Freight and Passenger Associatio Tuesday evening, Feb. 21. The committee having the arrangements in charge is composed of E. F. Galvin, G. A. Eggieston and A. S. Heydon. The menu will have semething of the nature of a bill of lading.

AT THE GRINDSTONE

Grinding the Face of the Poor. Push on your fight against the Sugar Trust, Continue those effective cuts. These monopolists are grinding the faces of the poor. New York, Feb. 3.

How the Sugar Trust Robs the Tables of the Poor.

grocery at 501 West Twentieth street. He said: "The poor suffer greatly. Many of my customers, who are mostly poor working people, buy sugar now by the half pound. Thus you see the effect of this infernal Sugar Trust. I appreciate THE EVENING WORLD'S efforts in trying to break it up."

As the reporter entered the store of J. Mansman, at 72 Varick street, he was preceded by a little girl who went to the counter and asked for a pound of brown sugar. The grocer said to the reporter: "You ask me the effect that the Sugar Trust has on the poor. Well, you saw that little girl ask me for brown sugar, which is the cheapest. She used to buy granulated, but can't afford to do it now. How would you like to sweeten your tea or coffee with brown sugar? Well, your tea or coffee with brown sugar? Well, that little girl's folks have to do so, although it spoils their meal. Thus you have one of the many examples that can be seen here day after day of the effect on the poor of the Sugar Trust."

George Snyder has a neat grocery at 63 Sullivan street. He said: "The Sugar Trust has proved a great enemy to the poor, and no one knows it better than we grocers. I do not sell as much sugar as I used to. I sell very little of the higher grades, having more demand for the cheapest. I am sure that the poor people will appreciate the fight that The Evenino World is making in their behalf."

behalf."

Charles Busch, grocer, of 219 West Nineteenth street, said: "This Sugar Trust is injuring me greatly. I purchased a quantity of sugar last week and paid the increased price, Well, I raised my prices accordingly, and my customers complained and went to the big store around the corner, where they bought sugar for two cents less than I sold it. The result is my customers buy other goods result is my customers buy other goods fellows out."

William Henken, corner of Beach and Washington streets, said: "Sugar is too high. People kick, and I have lost trade by it. Some stores bought sugar before it went up. Customers go where they can buy sugar a little cheaper at the same time that they get other greenies."

Fire in Ebling's Malt-House

Fire was discovered at 4.87 A. M. to-day in the Cromwell on the German Empire. "The German Empire, and Its Identical Points are to be married next Wednesday evening. The event will take place at the Church of the Holy Innocents, Thirty-seventh street, near Broadway. Lecture on the Poor of New York.

A Comparison:

602,391 Total number in Herald ... 438,476 Excess of World over Her-

Herald Excess of World over Herald 7,049

type writer we placed an advertisement in the Herald of Jan. 8, at a cost of 75 cents, and received 24 replies; in TER WORLD of Jan. 8, at a cost of fs cents, and received 115 replies.

We feel called upon to mention the fact, as had we been asked we would have said the difference would be impossible. Yours.

J. & H. LAMB.

PROTESTS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Charles Hellner keeps a well-stocked

there."

G. Klobe, grocer, of 79 Thompson street, said: "Yes, I can see every day the damaging effect that the Sugar Trust has on the poor. As you may judge from the neighborhood, my customers are the very poorest of people. A great many of them have dispensed with the use of sugar. I know some of them to have used molasses in sweetening their tea and coffee."

John Cleary, who keeps a fine grocery at 48 Macdougal street, said: "This thing won's be tolerated long. This Sugar Trust is an

John Cleary, who keeps a fine grocery at 48
Maodougal street, said: "This thing won's be tolerated long. This Sugar Trust is an oppressor of the poor. My customers have complained, of course. My sugar sales have declined noticeably. I hope that The Eveniso World will continue its warfare against those grabbing capitalists."

John Schluter, 184 Liberty street, said: "I don't like it for a cent. My customers grumble. I see that Thie Evening World has been giving them some good shots. They deserve it."

G. S. Wyatt, wholesale and retail grocer, at 214 Duane street, said: "It affects our customers more than it does us, of course.

G. S. Wyatt, wholesale and retail grocer, at 214 Duane street, said: "It affects our customers more than it does us, of course. We are obliged to use more capital on an article that there is no profit in. We could use the money to better advantage. I think that the Sugar Trust men will overreach themselves yet." Just as The Evening Wonling reporter was leaving, Mr. Wyatt called from his office: "I hope you will knock those fellows out."

William Henken, corner of Beach and other groceries.'

mait-house of Philip Ebling's brewery at St. Ann's avenue and One Hundred and Fifty-eighth street. avenue and One Hundred and Fifty-eighth street, it was fully ten minutes later when an alarm was rong, owing to the distance the policeman had to travel to reach the fire-box. The fire made great headway in the mean time, and a second alarm was sent out. The fire was suboued after three-quarters of of an hour's work. The loss is $4,500.

of Interest" will be illustrated and commented upon by Prof. Cromwell at the Grand Opera-House to-morrow evening. The museums of the Father-land, including those of Munich, will be shown, The lecture promises to be an extremely interest-ing one. The Martin-Trainer Wedding.

The Rev. Henry Kimball will lecture to-morrow evening at the Workingmen's Free Library, 16 Clinton place, on "The Poor of New York,"

The World is THE "Want" Medium.

Total Number of "Wants" published in The World during 1887

ald 163,915

16,970 9,921

One of the Many.

J. & R. Lamb, 50 Carming Strang, b.
NSW YOR, Jan. 18, 1868. J
Dear Sir: Wishing to obtain a shorthand and